“The ABC Construction (Management Academy) was well worth my time and money. It gave me some great ideas on efficiency and effective management that I would not have come across otherwise. I would consider sending other managers as well.”

Who Should Attend?

ABC Southern California is offering an intensive 3-day business management academy for those who want to learn more about the business of construction. The business of construction revolves around the Work Acquisition – Building Work – Keep Track Cycle. The faster a construction firm can complete this cycle with accuracy, the better the financial result and competitive edge. This is a course for the serious professional. He or she should be prepared for a fast paced, interactive class requiring them to think more about company operations than a single project or client.

Who is the Instructor?

Matt Stevens is a management consultant who has been working exclusively with construction contractors for 15 years. He has written 2 books, published by McGraw Hill, Managing a Construction Firm on Just 24 Hours a Day, and most recently, The New Business Model of Construction Contracting. His firm is located at www.stevensci.com.

“Your course was excellent in bringing to light many of the issues I have had to struggle through...I found the course to be very informative and valuable, not only for small business owners, but new Project Managers, and Superintendents...”

Chris Kalbach, E. Allen Reeves
